Wolfe's Diary

Chapter 1 about me (51dp)

Hello everyone! My name is Wolfe. I am an engineer pilot of the 56th battalion, one of the best engineer pilots of our battalions. And there are seven hundred of them! This is a very large figure. And among all, being the best is a great honor and honor.

Chapter 2. Transfer to the forty-first battalion

One day I was called by General Inkrald, of course I thought that he would lead me to the forty-first battalion, but I was not sure about it. Usually soldiers and the best fighters were left there. And then the pilot engineer, so I immediately gave up this idea and began to think why I was to him, but without thinking twice, I decided to go to him. When I came, he said to me, "Wolf, you are the best pilot engineer of all our battalions, for all your merits, I want to transfer you to the experimental, best, forty-first battalion. Agree?" Of course I agreed, because it's such an honor to become a fighter of the forty-first special battalion. Of course I'm not the first one there. There are already more than 50 people there, and among them are my friends Mize and Saifz. The general showed me my cabin and it was much better than ordinary soldiers' cabins.

Chapter 3. Joining groups about a week later, we were united into different soldier groups. My group consisted of five people. Me, Mize, Sayfz, Rayner and Fils. Of all our group, I spent the least days in the forty-first battalion.

Chapter 4. Tasks (4ldp)

There were a lot of small tasks, daughter, we already thought that we were not taken seriously, But we were given a task to five more battalions, we had to lead five battalions into battle, It was very difficult, we chose soldiers there were only three battalions left. There were four times more enemies than our soldiers. After returning to the base, we were rewarded. They made honorary wars of the forty-first battalion. It was a great honor for us. We were glad of that. After that, we were given small, medium-sized tasks, but there were no more tasks as big as the task with five battalions. After some more battles, our squad was given its own shuttle and a separate cabin.

The cabin was even better than it was before, it was an unprecedented luxury. The rest of the time we just sat in our cabin and rested. A few days later we celebrated our arrival in the forty-first battalion, because we had already served in it for a whole year. This year was easier, apart from the battle with five battalions, which is what we called it. After all, in the past years we fought much more often than in this one.

Chapter 5. Premen (3gdp)

A few months later, the general was replaced. General Yensf came to power. Our whole team sensed something was wrong. First, under unknown circumstances, General Inkrald disappeared. And the new general behaved very strangely. Such a series of events caused us to distrust the new general. We decided to find out where General Inkrald disappeared. They started looking for all the evidence. We decided to sneak into General Jeff's cabin while he wasn't there. Get through the guards will not work. Since I am a pilot engineer, the drawings of our base were available to me. I found out that all cabins are connected by ventilation, including the general. We decided to distribute. Mize and Saifs were supposed to sneak into the general's cabin, and Rayner was supposed to stay on guard. Mize had the task of hiding us. Sayfzov and I were supposed to be looking for clues... everything has changed so much here. The new general has done everything for himself here... we searched all the cabinets except for one frozen for a password. We couldn't find anything. Suddenly someone turned the key. We quickly climbed into the vent and returned to our cabin without any loot. The ruined closet was the only piece of evidence we found. But why would he hide something, especially in a closed room. It was very strange. This made us even more distrustful, but we didn't show it. We tried to find out something else, but we didn't succeed. As a result, we continued to live in thoughts and doubts. But our main theory was that Inkrald was killed. The end of the first part of the diary.
